As I write this, it has been five years since we moved to Elmira and into the manse. The landscaping around the manse has changed a lot in the last five years. When we moved in, the only landscaping around the manse was two amazing peony beds, a crabapple bush, two rhododendrons, a beautiful dogwood tree, and a struggling dogwood tree. Unfortunately, the struggling dogwood tree did not make it through the winter a couple of years ago. In its place is a growing maple tree.

The amazing peony beds are still there but have been joined by a multitude of perennials. There are now four large, raised beds in which we grow vegetables. We have added plants native to New York, and this year, we found our first monarch butterfly caterpillar on some of the milkweed we had planted. If it survives to become a butterfly and beyond, it will begin its migration southward in late summer or early fall. What once was a patch of lawn is now a place for monarch butterflies to lay their eggs and for their larvae to eat and to grow and to become butterflies themselves.

When the St. John's Wort we planted are in full bloom with their little yellow flowers, they are a favorite of honeybees, bumblebees, and other pollinators. The two plants hum from all the pollinators gathered there with their legs covered in fresh pollen as they move from bloom to bloom. It is mesmerizing to watch and to listen to them.

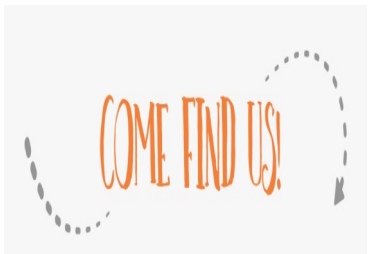

I marvel at the life that seems to spring forth once the grass is replaced with other plants. In place of uniformity, there are birds, butterflies, pollinators, the occasional rabbit, and plants that do not care whether I think that they should stay within the bounds of the flower bed or not. The change was and is not instantaneous but all the same happened and happens faster than one thinks. All I had to do was let go and let the plants do their thing.

Creation is full of diversity and variety. It is full of life that we can and cannot see. It is full of surprises, and it is constantly in movement, constantly changing. And we are no different. Why should we be different? We are part of creation. We were and are made by the same God. We were and are made to be in movement and to change.

And so, just as much as I have enjoyed the last five years, I am looking forward to the years to come. I am curious and excited to see what the Holy Spirit has in store for us and how the Holy Spirit will surprise us, move us, and transform us. After all, the God who created caterpillars that turn into butterflies created us as well.

Warmly in Christ,

Pastor Evan

Children and Youth Ministry August 2025

This summer has certainly flown by fast this year; but the heat has made up for it! We had fairly good weather for VBS with only one night spent inside for recreation. This year, we again joined with First Pres. of W. Elmira and a wonderful time was had by all! In total there were forty kids that attended, ten of them being teens. All the younger kids got along so well with the older kids, who were so willing to help out the little ones. I can't thank all the many volunteers enough for all the hard work they put in: from cooking, to decorating the church, to all the many craft ideas for each day. A special thank you to Lori Eastwood for loaning us the use of all those wonderful giant games for the last day's party!! And a very special thank you to everyone who donated food or money for the kiddos' dinners each night. It always amazes me and warms my heart to see how generous our congregation is towards our children's programs.

As we enter into August, we'll begin planning for the start of the new Sunday school season. Rally Day will be on September 7th this year and we are looking forward to planning lots of fun and educational activities for the kids. We would also like to continue getting the kids involved with Sunday service: from reading scripture, to ushering, to performing. If your child is interested in participating, please contact me, Allie Sevey or Liz Wilson. Our congregation enjoys the children's participation so much and so do the kiddos!!! Enjoy this last month of summer as we look forward to Fall and cooler weather!

Blessings,

Deb Stamp

PMUN welcomes Presbyterian Young Adult Delegation to UN high-level gathering

Forum focuses on the progress and challenges of reaching the 2030 Sustainable Development Goals

LOUISVILLE — The Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations (PMUN) is hosting nearly a dozen young people this week for a high-level UN gathering in New York focused on Sustainable Development Goals that were adopted in 2015 to spur global progress toward ending poverty, protecting the planet, achieving peace and ensuring prosperity and partnership worldwide.

The first Presbyterian Young Adult Delegation to the UN High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development \(HLPF\) is comprised of participants nominated by their churches and presbyteries to observe the UN discussions and to take part in events organized by PMUN and its partners.

“We have a strong delegation from all across the country,” said Sue Rheem, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) representative to the UN and manager of the PMUN office. “We are grateful to the mid council and church leaders for their support in getting the word out and to the Church of the Covenant in New York City for providing housing accommodations with generous support from the Presbytery of New York City.”

The forum, which began Monday and concludes next week, brings together ministerial and high-level representatives of governments, as well as other experts and stakeholders, to discuss the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development adopted at the UN Sustainable Development Summit a decade ago.

Members of the Presbyterian delegation hail from churches and presbyteries spanning from Newark, New Jersey to Southern California.

“The forum is an opportunity for young people to come to the UN to learn about sustainable development, to meet others from around the world who are working for change to live more sustainably, and be part of the solution to create a world that is more just and equitable,” Rheem said.

The theme of this year’s forum is “Advancing sustainable, inclusive, science- and evidence-based solutions for the 2030 Agenda and its SDGs for leaving no one behind.”

The goals being reviewed in-depth are Good Health and Well-Being, Gender Equality, Decent Work and Economic Growth, Life Below Water, and Partnerships for the Goals, Rheem said. With the deadline to reach the goals just five years away, the UN released a report on Monday that indicates that the SDGs have improved millions of lives, but change isn’t occurring fast enough to fully achieve every goal by 2030.

Despite gains such as increased access to education, electricity and the internet, “we are not where we need to be,” UN Secretary-General António Guterres said during a press conference. “Only 35% of SDG targets are on track or making moderate progress. Nearly half are moving too slowly, and 18% are going in reverse. We are in a global development emergency — an emergency measured in the over 800 million people still living in extreme poverty, in intensifying climate impacts, and in relentless debt service, draining the resources that countries need to invest in their people.”

He also stressed the importance of peace, acknowledging the deep links between underdevelopment and conflicts and stressing the importance of continuing to work for peace in places like Sudan, Ukraine and the Middle East.

“We need an immediate ceasefire in Gaza, the immediate release of all hostages and unimpeded humanitarian access as a first step to achieve the two-state solution,” he said. Also, “from the DRC to Somalia, from the Sahel to Myanmar, we know that sustainable peace requires sustainable development.”

Delegates following this week’s discussions include Rae Brock, a member of First Presbyterian Church of Hickory in the Presbytery of Western North Carolina.

“Last year, I served as a YAAD (Young Adult Advisory Delegate) on the International Engagement Committee at the 226th GA (General Assembly), and at HLPF I am learning more about how our PC(USA) policy and the resolutions we worked on last year are part of a greater global mission to create a more just and sustainable world,” said Brock, 20. “Although the UN Sustainable Development Goals are rooted in universal, secular values, I see them as a reflection of how I as a Christian believe we are called to live, love and serve as Christ did.”

PMUN Advocacy Associate Clare Balsan and Rheem are excited to walk alongside the delegates.

“We are so thrilled to welcome our inaugural Young Adult Delegation to the UN's High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development,” Balsan said. “Our young people are bright, enthusiastic and committed to justice, and we couldn’t wait to ... introduce them to the work of our office and the UN, while also learning from them and their experiences being advocates in their home churches and communities.”
